I am Jamil Hasan, 23 years old. I'm currently studying computer science as an undergraduate student. I love solving problems. Problems that arise in our daily lives when we use consumer technology.

Helping my friends and family, or even my academic institution, in setting up and using technology is fun for me. I always try to avoid technical jargon and keep things understandable for everyone. This provides a clear understanding of what I want my audience to see or do. One of my goals is to simplify communication and make things clear to my audiences. I want to apply this knowledge to my career and other parts of my life.

More about myself

Experience

I have about 6 months of working experience as a customer service agent in an ecommerce shop.

My Skills

I have experience with popular operating systems such as Windows, macOS and Desktop Linux. I am well versed in Custom ROM (such as AOSP, Lineage OS), deGoogling, troubleshooting and providing technical support. Writing documentation is also on my list of skills. I'm a fast learner and I adapt to new environments pretty fast.

Languages I can speak

My native language is Bengali (BN-IN, BN-BD). And my secondary language is English (EN-IN, EN-US) which I read and write fluently and speak well.
